Community Development
Institute Central
August 6-10, 2012

For the past 25 years, development professionals in the mid-south have looked to CDI Central for the latest resources and strategies to improve their communities and increase economic opportunities. CDI Central, along with its network of instructors, has been proud to welcome hundreds of participants into a learning environment that provides real-world information that can have immediate application when participants return home.

Some of the benefits of participating in CDI Central are the comprehensive nature of the curriculum and the diversity of attendees. Elected officials, chamber officials, economic developers, city planners, nonprofit professionals, community developers and many others have an opportunity to interact and learn from one another. Visit our website, call or email to learn more about our courses and to register for the 2012 session.
